

Colorado Court Sends Shepherds' Wage-Fixing Antitrust Suit Out to Pasture

Minding Your Business Blog on April 6, 2017

Defendants in a putative class action lawsuit alleging wage fixing antitrust claims no longer need to count sheep to rest easily. A district court judge in Colorado recently denied plaintiffs' request for leave to amend, effectively dismissing claims brought by a group of shepherds working under the H-2A Visa Program, which covers agricultural guest workers... Continue Reading

Related Professionals

- Stephen R. Chuk
Senior Counsel