Jennifer Roche is an experienced litigator in both federal and state court, at both the trial and appellate court levels. Jennifer has significant pretrial discovery, deposition and motion practice experience. She represents public and private clients across a range of industries in complex civil, bankruptcy and fiduciary litigation, including matters such as antitrust and unfair competition claims, contract and trust disputes, products liability, and business torts.

Jennifer also represents clients in internal investigations and regulatory investigations initiated by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and other government agencies. In addition, she advises private equity and private credit clients in connection with target company and borrower litigation exposure.

Jennifer maintains an active pro bono practice focusing on Constitutional rights and issues relating to education and veterans.

Before entering the practice of law, Jennifer worked for several years as a consultant in the health care industry, advising clients in the selection and implementation of health care technology solutions.
